MEXICAN PLOT IS REVEALED BY FALL

Evidence That Mexico Was To Seize Border States In Revolt

Washington, Dec. 8.—Evidence that radicals in Mexico with the knowledge and support of President Carranza, plotted to instigate a revolution in the United States and to seize border states acquired by the American Government in 1848, is contained in memorandum presented to President Wilson by Senator Fall, New Mexico, chairman of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee, investigating the Mexican situation.

Plans for the proposed revolution were obtained by the subcommittee from the minutes of a meeting October 15 last in Mexico City of Lodge 23, an organization of extreme agitators and members of the Industrial Workers of the World. The Mexican President is linked most directly with the plot through correspondence in which he recommends three men for special consideration because of their connection with the plan which they desire to put into practice in the State of Texas. These men, the committee states, have been identified as active agents of Lodge 23.

General Strike Planned.
The memorandum which contains an abstract of evidence collected by the committee, was delivered to the President by Senator Fall Friday night and made public late today.

Notes of the October 15 meeting of the radical lodge declare "there appeared three delegates, two American and one Mexican, who had arrived from the United States, and who claimed that 'the society' would be able at the beginning of next November (that is, November, 1919), to call a general strike of all miners and metal workers in the United States; that they have three million adherents in that country, where they will be able to seize one Western and two Atlantic ports; that a large number of American soldiers were preparing to take sides with them, and that they proposed to establish a capital of a reformed government of the United States in the State of Colorado; that when such a revolution was successful, the Mexicans rendering assistance, the border States which were acquired by the United States under the treaty of 1848, would be returned to Mexico."

The three men referred to are the same, the memorandum states, as those mentioned by Carranza in letters of which the committee has secured photostatic copies.

Letters signed by Carranza.
The first of these letters, dated June 4th, and addressed to Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Mexican Minister at Gobernacion, says:

"Senor Lino Caballo, bearer of this letter, is the person who, in company with two friends, will bring to you the manifestoes and the plan which they desire to put into practice in the State of Texas."

"This plan being very favorable for Mexico, please aid them in every way and give necessary instructions in frontier States."

"I remain your affectionate friend,
"V. CARRANZA."

The second letter, dated August 19, and addressed to the same Government official, follows:

"The present letter will be delivered to you by Mr. Juan N. Garcia, and the two friends who accompany him, and in accordance with our conversation, please give them the guarantees they solicit as well as pecuniary assistance they may desire."

"I remain your friend affectionately,
"V. CARRANZA."

Other information secured by the committee, and which it regards as reliable, indicates treaty negotiations between Mexico and Japan. The document in possession of the committee states that one high official of Mexico, would communicate to another high official that "the treaty with Japan is coming along," and that the writer is convinced of the "great advantages it would bring Mexico for its national integrity." Reference is contained in another document to support the Mexican government proposes to give the German initiative in Mexico.

Senator Fall's comment on the plan of revolution disclosed in the minutes of the Lodge meeting is that it would appear "peripetous, ridiculous and so fantastic as of itself to deserve little attention were it not first, for the fact, that it is similar in all essentials to the plan of Sandiego, which by the only judicial tribunal passing upon the question was declared to have been backed or supported by armed forces through a state of war by V. Carranza in 1915; and second, were it not for the fact that the plan of Sandiego itself is dating, and this present plain following, were and are in exact line with the note of June 19, 1917, from Zimmermann to Von Eckhart, then Ambassador from Germany to Mexico."

The Zimmermann note contained the paragraph: "We (Germany) shall give general financial support to Mexico, and it is understood that Mexico is to reconquer the lost territory in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona." In this connection the memorandum called attention to the suggestion in the Zimmermann note that Mexico communicate with Japan suggesting adherence to the plan and offer her mediation between Japan and Germany.

Evidence in possession of the committee, Senator Fall informed the President, indicates that conditions along the border are "rapidly taking on the same character which had been assumed in our relations with Mexico prior and subsequent to" the date fixed for uprisings under the plan of Sandiego.

The committee, the memorandum said, has obtained possession of what President Carranza calls his "blue book." At various places in this book attention is called to the oppressive policy of the United States toward Mexico, and stress is laid upon the assertion that President Carranza has resisted every such encroachment and in every instance "from the first proposed Niagara conference down to and including the American protests as to nationalization of lands and other properties," that he has been successful in "refusing absolutely to yield in any respect to the demands" of this Government.

Wilson Is Assailed.
"Do not forget my injunction," Carranza wrote "to describe in lively colors the tortuosity of the American policy with relation to our country, causing the figure of Wilson to stand out."

The resolution asking President Wilson to break off diplomatic relations with the Carranza Government was abandoned today by Republican leaders in the Senate after the President had informed Senator Fall, its author, that he would "be gravely concerned to see any such resolution pass the Congress."

Before the President dispatched his letter, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held an hour's session for discussion of the Mexican situation, including the Carranza oil decrees, which would have been the subject of diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Mexico, but at the suggestion of Senator Fall action on his resolution was deferred until the President had expressed his views.

FORMER OHIO COUNTY BOY
MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

Tommie Hornback, of Humble, Tex., formerly of this county, was instantly killed on December 7th, while carrying a stick of dynamite in his hand. The dynamite for some unknown reason exploded, tearing his hand from his body and badly mutilating his head.

Mr. Hornback was working in an oil field 300 miles from his home when the fatal accident occurred. His remains were sent to Humble, where they were interred. Mr. Hornback was a son of D. W. Hornback and grandson of W. H. and J. M. Foreman; was 24 years of age and is survived by a wife and two children. He had many friends and relatives in this county who will be grieved to learn of his death.

THE BAZAAR.

The Bazaar given by the Ladies of the Methodist Church, Tuesday, from our view point was a decided success. We were not bothered with a menu card, bill of fare or anything of the sort, we simply sat down to the table and were served with a heaping plate of chicken, dressing, creamed potatoes and all of the side trimmings usually found with such a dinner. Our greatest trouble was in trying to consume the contents of the bounteous plate, in which we dismally failed, only because there is some limitation on our capacity. Quite a number of useful articles were neatly arranged for sale, the majority of which were in packages that could not be inspected until after purchased, so no one ever knew just what he was getting when the purchase was made, although it made no apparent difference as the articles moved fast the same.

The ladies continued to serve lunches during the late afternoon, consisting of cream, sherbet, cakes, soup and sandwiches. It was an enjoyable occasion, being the first of the kind since the Country was involved in the late war and altogether very successful from a financial standpoint, the net proceeds amounting to $122.00. May these Bazaars come regularly and often in the future, especially that part indulged in by the writer at the noon hour.

SOCIAL CLUB WITH MRS.
BARRASS AND MISS WOERNER

The Ladies' Social Club was entertained in its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. E. G. Barrass and Miss Sophia Woerner in a delightful manner. After several games of progressive rook were enjoyed a delicious lunch was served. Those present were: Mesdames Lyman G. Barrett, M. L. McCracken, R. T. Collins, E. E. Birkhead, C. O. Hunter, A. C. Porter, Jno. P. Taylor, T. H. Black, H. E. Mischke, W. S. Tinsley and E. G. Barrass; Misses Lettie Marks and Sophia Woerner. Guests present were, Mrs. N. Belle Cooper, Misses Margaret Marks and Elizabeth Moore.

MORROW SWORN IN AS NEW GOVERNOR

Record Breaking Throng Sees Inauguration In Frankfort.

Louisville Herald.
(By Robert D. Anderson)

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—With their left hands placed upon the same Bible, Edwin P. Morrow, of Somerset, and S. Thruston Ballard, of Louisville, simultaneously took their oaths of office as governor and lieutenant governor of Kentucky, respectively, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The Bible was open at the twenty-third Psalm.

The accession to power of Kentucky's new executive was acclaimed tumultuously by the biggest gathering that ever has attended an inauguration in Frankfort.

Inadequate transportation facilities and unfavorable weather were factors powerless to prevent the Republicans of Kentucky from giving their chosen servants an inaugural ovation thoroughly in keeping with the magnificent vote of confidence they gave them in November.

On account of the lateness of trains, the inaugural exercises did not open until an hour and a half after the time set by the committee. In the meantime, the bulk of the big crowd had gathered at the capitol and waited patiently in spite of the drizzling rain. Mist was falling upon the bare heads of the assemblage when the governor and lieutenant governor were sworn in.

Reaffirms All Pledges.

In his brief inaugural address, Governor Morrow reaffirmed "the provisions and pledges contained in my party's binding obligation."

"To its fulfillment," Governor Morrow said, "I pledge every effort, every energy and the best of every power of head and heart which God has given me. In the performance of this contract, now made with all the people, for the good of all the people, I ask the aid of all the people."

Recognition of the spirit of unrest abroad in America was seen in that portion of the new governor's address which pledged him to maintain unchallenged the supremacy of the law. "The law," said Governor Morrow, "is the shield and sword of the whole people, the sentinel at every home, the watchman at every fireside. It is, at last, the final guarantee of 'life liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"

Governor Morrow's voice vibrated with emotion when he concluded his address with a prayer that he may be given strength by the Deity to carry out fully all the obligations of the high trust which has been reposed in him.

The valedictory address of Governor James D. Black consisted chiefly of an explanation why he could not accomplish some of the things demanded of him. He declared that his only regret in surrendering the governorship is that it deprives him of the opportunity of carrying out his educational program.

Thorofares are Crowded.

Frankfort presented a scene of brightness and gaiety upon the morning of inauguration day. The national colors vivified every building, and the streets were packed with crowds carrying banners and flags. Bands were playing one every corner. The big gathering was swelled by each succeeding train, and by the arrival of hundreds of automobile parties, until passage through the streets became almost impossible.

The 1st Division, United States Army, represented by infantry, artillerymen, two guns and the massed colors of the eight regiments, and the Louisville Police Department, represented by mounted police, the famous rifle squad, and motorcycle men, proved popular divisions of the big parade. The veterans of the 1st Division received an ovation. The Louisville police presented a splendid appearance and were cheered enthusiastically.

The Inaugural Ceremonies.

The inaugural exercises were held on a large platform which had been erected at the entrance to the capitol. Seated upon this platform were Governor Morrow and Governor Black, with their families; the retiring state officers, the state officers-elect, fifty prominent Republicans composing the personal escort of Governor Morrow, Chief Justice John D. Carroll, Judge E. C. O'Rear and members of the committee.

The speaker's table was decorated with the American flag which draped the body of President McKinley when it was taken to Canton, O., for burial. Mrs. McKinley presented this flag to the late Senator William O'Connell Bradley, and it now is in the possession of Mrs. John G. South, a daughter of the senator.

Judge Edward C. O'Rear, master of ceremonies, introduced Governor Black, to whom he paid a tribute as a man of high patriotism and purposes.

Governor Black spoke for half an hour. The retiring governor disclaimed any intention of commenting upon the election, but said that "on some other day I may have something more to say about recent events."

Judge O'Rear, in introducing Governor Morrow, said that he had heard some discussion of fourteen reasons for the sweeping majority given the Republican ticket. "I will give you the fifteenth reason—here he is," Judge O'Rear remarked, presenting Morrow.

A tremendous outburst of cheering greeted Governor Morrow when he arose. Governor Morrow's address required only five minutes for its delivery. His voice was fully recovered from the strain of the recent campaign, and carried to the outskirts of the great throng.

As the governor turned to receive the oath of office, the Rev. G. F. David, Sr., a negro minister of Lexington, presented him with a Bible on behalf of the A. M. E. Zion church of Kentucky. In his speech of presentation, the minister commented upon Governor Morrow's appeal for divine guidance, in the close of his address, and asked that he read the gift diligently. He expressed confidence that the governor will find in its pages strength to fortify him in all his decisions for the public weal.

Governor Morrow and Lieutenant Governor Ballard placed their left hands upon the Bible, elevating their right hands. Chief Justice John D. Carroll, of the Court of Appeals administered the constitutional oath, to which the two executives made a firm response, "I do."

LYCEUM ENTERTAINMENT.

The second number of the series of four entertainments to be put on at College Hall here, was delivered Saturday night by the Woodland Quartet, of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau.

There were two other shows in town on the same date, these with the very inclement weather necessarily limited the attendance to a comparatively small number, but those who were present were well repaid, as the entertainment was of the highest class ever given here, of that character.

This entertainment was to have been delivered Monday, Dec. the 1st, but by being routed through the quartet got stranded at Fordsville, and could not reach here to fill the engagement.

LABOR FOOLED BY WILSON INJUNCTION

Clayton Act Used In 1916 To Get Vote Of Labor For Democrats.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—It is the consensus of opinion in political circles in the National Capital that the Wilson Administration has irreparably lost its hold upon labor because of its use of the injunction in the coal strike after its promise, embodied in the Clayton antitrust act, not to do so.

Just as the President in 1916 gave an unqualified promise to keep the country out of war and failed to do so because of circumstances which he and others had foreseen, and just as he repeatedly asserted on the stump earlier in the year that the league of nations covenant would end all future wars in spite of preparations in several parts of the globe for conflict, so now through Congress an injunction law which is now abandoned in face of the necessity of getting coal.

Never had for years been making an attempt to limit the use of the injunction by the courts in labor disputes as a means of protecting property and placing strikers at a disadvantage. In 1914 its leaders were therefore delighted when the Clayton act included the following provision:

"That no restraining order or injunction shall be granted by any court of the United States, or a judge or the judges thereof, in any case between an employer and employees, or between employers and employees, or between employees and persons seeking employment, involving, or growing out of a dispute concerning terms or conditions of employment, unless necessary to prevent irreparable injury to property, or to a property right, of the party making the application, for which injury there is no adequate remedy at law, and such property or property right must be described with particularity in the application, which must be in writing and sworn to by the applicant or by his agent or attorney."

Through the war has been over for more than a year, Judge Anderson's injunction was granted because of the application of the government, through the Attorney General, based upon the terms of the Lever war act to prevent any attempt to limit the production and distribution of food and fuel. It has been particularly disastrous to the mine workers because of the promise made in the law and not kept, as because violence to property had not been resorted to until the injunction was issued even before the strike began. Miners and all union workers are therefore incensed at the Administration which made its injunction legislation one of the bases for its plea for support from labor—that and the Adamson law was "Thank God for Wilson for he kept us out of war."

What makes union labor all the more incensed is the following statement issued by the Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass:

"Coal operators generally in the United States in the years 1914 and 1915 lost money when normal depression and depreciation are taken into consideration. What is meant by this is that proper item in fixing costs is depreciation of plant and depreciation of the cost or value of the coal in the ground."

In 1918 conditions were not so good in the Appalachian and central competitive districts, profits generally being reduced 25 to 30 per cent less than for the preceding year, the range being from 15 to 300 per cent on invested capital. In the West conditions in 1918 were better than in 1917, the profits in the Rocky Mountain districts ranging as high as 400 per cent on invested capital.

Official figures for 1919, incomplete of course, indicate that profits of the operators are less than for 1918, some of the operators claiming to have actually lost money."

DREAMS SON STOLEN
KILLS WIFE IN HIS SLEEP

Washington, N. J., Nov. 24.—Visions of horrors of black hand letters, who had threatened to kidnap his 4-year-old son, came to James Sapienza, a prosperous concrete block manufacturer, in his dreams before he awakened this morning. Still dreaming Sapienza drew a 32-caliber revolver from beneath his pillow and fired.

"Oh, Jim!" moaned a voice at his side. And he waked to find he had shot his wife in her sleep. Frantic with grief, Sapienza bent over his wife, but she was dead. In her crib nearby, peacefully sleeping thru the tragedy, was their little daughter, Mary, two years old.

Sapienza is held on a technical charge of murder.

THIS YEARS XMAS GIFT.

This year there is going to be more sensible Christmas gifts bestowed and fewer of those useless gifts that persons give simply because they feel they ought to be giving something. The children in the schools are responsible for this in a great measure. They have been taught the value of saving, and in doing so have learned the value of War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps. For the vast volume of pretty gifts, little Jimcracks, and the like, the Thrift Stamp is going to take its place, while there will be War Savings Stamps for a more substantial present, while the still more pretentious present will be the Treasury Savings Certificate that is sold by the United States Treasury Department in denominations of $100 and $1000.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 550,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

DEMOCRATS UPHELD IN FIGHT ON TREATY

Shields And Gore Receive Evidence Of Popular Approval.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Hope on the part of President Wilson and Senator Hitchcock that Democratic unity and popular approval would flow from the defeat by the Democrats of the peace treaty as Americanized by Senator Lodge and the Republicans of the Senate has been blasted by reports which have come to the Capital from the states.

Senator Shields, of Tennessee, whose friends said he was taking his political life in his hands by voting with the Republican majority, has received encomiums from his constituents and the organized business men have endorsed his course. Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, another Democrat who disobeyed the President's command to vote to have the treaty just as he wanted it or kill it, has gained in popular support since the 5th district of his state elected a Republican member of Congress by an overturn of 6,900 votes. Senator Reid is now the idol of the Democrats of Missouri, reports received here indicate.

"The treaty with reservations is better than the treaty without them," said Senator Hoke Smith, another Democrat who voted with Senator Lodge. "As between the treaty with the Lodge reservations and the treaty without them, I had no difficulty in reaching a conclusion. These reservations free the treaty from language of uncertainty. They take from it doubtful provisions which would lead to disputes and war."

"To me, patriotism is above party. I cannot consent to see a treaty fashioned upon this country, if I can prevent it, which places upon this country the burden of preserving the status quo of the world. After exquisite language about 'freeing subject nations' and 'self determination' expressing the attitude of the United States, we practically assume under Article X the burden of maintaining the status quo, when nearly one-third of the peoples of the world are subject nations under our four principal allies. I cannot vote to draft our boys for every war and to maintain the present world status."

"Party obligations can never rise as high as duty to your country. I dislike to disagree with my party associates, but on a question of the importance of the league I was constrained to do so. I believe that the league covenant as it stands involves such sacred rights of our country and is calculated to bring such distress upon our people, that I would have been faithless to my oath as a senator if I had failed to vote for ratification without Americanizing reservations."

THE FRENCH PHOENIX

It is the proud boast, a boast justified by history. The City of Paris proclaims it on her escutcheon. Paris may be threatened by the foe, the floods may compass her on every side; still she is never submerged. Paris represents the country's character and genius, so France always rises defeating all efforts to destroy her.

Whole districts have been destroyed, cities in ruins, thousands of villages wiped out as though an earthquake had passed, leaving no trace. The only way of knowing where a smiling, prosperous, happy village once stood is afforded by a post station. "Here was the village of, say, Pont-aux-Bois."

Have the brave yet never submerged people, whose once happy homes are now mere rubbish heaps, given way to despair? A less heroic people might have. We in England and you in America can only dimly grasp the situation. Five million of people, ruined and homeless; food has been lacking, health impaired; and yet this sorely tried population, with a courage that is sublime an intelligence that is marvelous, and a tenacity that knows no limit, is working, working often sixteen hours a day, so long as strength lasts, to remake, literally remake a country as large as Belgium. The people are doing this, not its government.

What other land has ever been so destroyed and so speedily set to the work of restoration by the labor of its inhabitants, men, women and children? Towns are being rebuilt, villages of wooden cottages are rising up everywhere; temporary shelters for the working heroes and heroines have sprung up, fields have been cleared of war's abominations, and smiling harvests gathered in.

A British officer, touched by and wondering at the strenuous work of a young girl ploughing—a mere slip of a girl, spoke to her; no answer, so intent was she on her work. He then ventured to say, "Could not your father or a brother help?" "Non, Monsieur, my father died for France and my only brother is watching the cruel enemy on the Rhine. If I work like this it is because I must." The girl had that proud look seen on the face of a French peasant who would not accept charity. The officer saluted as he would an equal, full of admiration for a country producing such stout-hearted young girls.

American help to devastated France has been invaluable for which she is and ever will be grateful, but the worthy expressed and the devotion of the nurses of the splendid ambulances have appealed more to the French people than money aid given by the Great Sister Republic to help them in the hour of need. It will take many years to restore the homes and factories of Northern France. The avowed object of the enemy was to destroy France. He has in a measure succeeded; but for the ardent patriotism of this great nation, great in war, greater in peace, national ruin would have resulted.

Nature has not been idle. She has clothed the hillside and plains with grass and flowers. Trees have been planted. Thus the hideous scars of war are being hidden. Homes or shelters are springing up; happy little children are learning to play; tiny little fellows who have never known what playing meant are laughing and singing, but the joy of life has gone forever in this world from the lives of mothers and fathers whose sons gave their lives in their defense, for France and liberty. Such people cannot and will not die; such people give an example to the world by their heroic struggle to save the dear Motherland its cherished liberty and the world's liberty.

We give one instance of the marvelous efforts being made by French people to create a New France, how they cling to it, how they love it!

Pont-a-Mousson—how familiar the name, for it was the first town to be bombarded close to the frontier a few miles from the great fortress of Metz, with its thousand guns, received its daily storm of shot and shell which never entirely ceased till the armistice was signed. Four years and two months of bombardment! Of its 14,000 pre-war inhabitants, 100 were killed, 250 badly wounded, a few escaped, some were hurt. Of 1788 houses, 1642 destroyed or rendered uninhabitable, six million dollars of damages. Gradually the inhabitants left, but the final order of evacuation was made August 8, 1918, three months before the armistice. Nine months after, 5,000 inhabitants have returned and found homes somewhere. The Mayor of Nancy has advanced 1,500,000 francs for urgent repairs; several schools and churches have been opened; everywhere reconstruction is going on.

Metz sent at once 80,000 francs for food; a week after, 100,000 francs; then followed 300 stoves, 250 cooking ovens, mattresses, bedding, pans, saucepans etc., all given. What Pont-a-Mousson has done all the stricken towns and cities are doing. So far government has done but little, the public purse is sadly empty for a time.

France has deserved well of Fate. She will be rewarded. Her place in the world has never been higher. Uncover when you see her glorious flag; it is the symbol of a virile nation whose motto, "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality," adds a new dignity—new honor to the human race. Vive la France!—Our Dumb Animals.

NEW FORM OF IRON RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLES

Eat What You Like—Stop Suffering From Acid Stomach—Gas, Pains and Other Forms of In- digestion—Results Almost Immediately

For years physicians have been searching for a form of iron that could be combined with certain other ingredients like pepsin, etc., for use in treating chronic disorders of the digestive tract, mal-assimilation etc., etc. This is sufficient evidence that medicine recognizes the great value of iron for stomach troubles when administered in proper form.

If you have been disappointed with lack of results from pills and tonics said to contain iron you can now understand that the iron was not presented in a form that could be absorbed by the stomach into the system. And therefore could not possibly bring you benefit.

This new form of iron is not prepared by chemists—it is found in Nature itself combined with other highly beneficial medicinal agents. It is quickly absorbed by the system and in sufficient measure to bring results that you can feel in a very short time. Just ask your druggist for Acid Iron Mineral. He will also tell you that stomach troubles are relieved by taking a spoonful in a glass of water three times a day. And for acute conditions like "sour stomach" etc., a single dose will in most cases bring relief. This natural form of iron seems to neutralize the excess acid in the stomach as nothing else in all medicine. Stomach disorders of long standing where the patient is subject to distress after eating, gulping, headaches, dizziness, etc., yield positively to steady treatment with Acid Iron Mineral.

And don't forget that the general system is strengthened and invigorated owing to the iron content of this great medicine. All druggists cheerfully refund the purchase price if the results are not satisfactory to you in every way.

ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC SUSPENDS BUSINESS

Globe-Democrat Absorbs Oldest Paper West Of Mississippi.

The St. Louis Republic has been purchased by the Globe-Democrat, and with the issue of Thursday morning the Republic passes out of existence.

The Globe-Democrat has taken over the subscription lists of the Republic for both the daily, Sunday and weekly editions. Subscribers to the Republic weekly will next week receive the Globe-Democrat weekly. Republic First Newspaper Published West of Mississippi

The Republic was first published on July 12, 1898, and with its final issue this morning it has covered 111 years, 5 months and 23 days.

It was the first newspaper published west of the Mississippi River and was established by Joseph Charles, who came to the then small frontier trading-post town of St. Louis in the spring of 1898 by keelboat from Louisville, Ky., down the Ohio and up the Mississippi.

Upon arrival he announced that a printing press had been shipped by him from Pennsylvania via Louisville, and that when it arrived he would begin publishing a newspaper. This announcement was circulated in the form of a sheet printed in both English and French with space at the bottom for the signatures of those who would subscribe for the new paper.

The first issue was published on a sheet 12 inches long and 8 inches wide and called "The Missouri Gazette." It had 170 subscribers who had promised to pay $3 in advance, or $4 in country produce.

The third issue of the Gazette announced the result of the first St. Louis election after the incorporation of the town. Five trustees were elected after the incorporation of the town. Five trustees were elected in the old Courthouse. The town then had 1100 inhabitants and 200 houses. Charles was an Irishman who left his native country because of participation in the revolution of 1795. After coming to this country he set type in Philadelphia on the first quarto edition of the Bible issued in the United States, and later worked on newspapers in Lexington and Louisville, Ky.

After twelve strenuous years, as owner, editor, compositor, pressman and business manager of the Missouri Gazette, Charles sold the paper to James C. Cummins, who came to St. Louis from Pittsburgh, Pa. In the twelve years of his ownership, Charles had built the circulation up to 1000.

Eighteen months later Cummins sold the paper to Edward Charles, a son of the publication's founder, who changed its name to "The Missouri Republican," and engaged Josiah Spaulding, a graduate of Yale, as editor.

In 1828 Nathaniel Paschall became the partner of Edward Charles and editor of the paper. He came to the old Gazette in 1812 as a bound boy to the elder Charles. About the time that Paschall became partner in the ownership of the paper, a boy that was designed to maintain a long and important connection with the paper, entered its service as an apprentice. He was George Knapp, who remained with the paper until 1883, a total service of fifty-six years. He died at sea in his way home from Europe. His nephew, Charles W. Knapp was connected with the Republic forty-nine years, and was in control of the paper from 1893 to 1916, when he went to New York to assume the trusteeship of the New York Times, and died almost as soon as he had assumed the duties of his new position.

Paper Changed from Weekly to Daily
The present name of the paper was adopted in 1888, when it became "The Republic," thereby lessening the confusion of strangers who did not understand how "The Republican" could be a Democratic organ.

The change from a weekly to a daily was made September 20, 1836, and in 1848 the first Sunday paper was published.

ALBERT RIDICULES PRESIDENCY HINT

Brussels, Dec. 6.—King Albert ruled on the suggestion of his candidacy for president of a republic of Belgium just prior to his departure for the United States, according to a revelation made here recently.

Dr. Edouard Beyer, a member of the Socialist group, was present at a reception given for the King and Queen on the eve of their departure. During the evening the King had a personal chat with the Socialist leader.

"Tell me, doctor," he asked, "what your political friends think of me?" "That you are an excellent King your Majesty," was the reply, "but that you would make as good a president of a republic."

"Come now," came the King's smiling reply, "If I said to you, 'Well, Dr. Beyer, you are a skilled physician and a consultant at some of our greatest hospitals, but I am going to deprive you of your many qualifications because you would make just as good a veterinary surgeon,' what would you say?"

According to the story, Beyer found no reply ready and, bowing, made way for other guests.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"We have to admit that some governments are smarter than other governments. Under an agreement between the Federal Government and the British Royal Commission for the disposal of last year's Cuban sugar crop, more than one-half of the sugar that comes through the refineries under the jurisdiction of the Sugar Equalization Board is shipped to England, while thousands of families in this country cannot buy a pound of sugar anywhere. The League of Nations wouldn't remedy this, but a reasonable amount of forward looking commonsense would have averted the trouble."—Philadelphia Press.

"According to a statement published in the Philadelphia Ledger, the movement to cleanse the American Federation of Labor of the taint of radical socialism, no matter under what special nomenclature the radical propagandism may be operating, has been started in that city. The opening incident of the 'Red drive' doesn't loom so large, but there is a strong intimation from A. F. and L. sources that the expulsion of four rods from the local branch of the International Association of Machinists is but a starter to a clean-out program that has been definitely decided upon."—Baltimore American.

"Once again Carranza assumes the role of the swaggering bully spoiling for a fight, insulting his neighbors, who with difficulty are restraining their impulses to administer to him the sound thrashing he deserves. If he is permitted to succeed in this scheme, to what lengths will he not go in heaping indignities upon Americans? Not content with injuring American individuals and corporations, he has insulted the United States Government in the person of one of its officials. The failure to bring Carranza to account for previous offenses is having its logical consequences. Never before was American prestige so low in Mexico."—Washington Post.

"With the Congress in regular session, the first duty, we think, will be to declare the existence of a state of peace between the United States and Germany. This can best be done by the adoption of a joint resolution to that effect. If the Lodge resolution which was introduced in concurrent form at the last session is by an amendment made a joint resolution, it should be promptly passed by both houses and sent to the President for his signature. If the President vetoes that resolution, he will doubtless be willing to take the consequence. Certainly he cannot shift the responsibility and he ought not to try to shirk it. If the bankers and business men who pretend to be indifferent to the terms of the treaty and concerned only with the discontinuance of a state of war are sincere, they will demonstrate the sincerity of their position by supporting a joint resolution of peace. If they fail to do that, the plain people of the land will become more suspicious than ever over the flood of propaganda from Wall street."—Boston Transcript.

"Not even the best friends of the new labor party can pretend that it possesses a great and unifying cause. It may develop in the heat of battle but at the outset the party is wholly artificial alliance of antipathetic discontents. The inspiration comes not at all from the rank and file, but from a group of radical leaders who have sat at the feet of the British Labor party (with a squint at Petrograd) and resolved that America is ripe for a similar organization. Neither union labor nor the old time farmers' organizations have ready sympathy with the new movement. It must recruit chiefly from the extreme left of the nation, the 'Reds' of parlor, factory and farm. It is a strange Coxey's army that seems likely to result. Never has it been attempted to gather so many job lots of dissent and rebellion under one banner. The declaration of principles was necessarily varied and glittering. It is hard to see how life can be breathed into so formless and conglomerate a mass."—New York Tribune.

GEN. MARCH'S ARMY BILL IS DISCARDED

House Committee Rejects Universal Training Proposition.

Washington, Dec. 6.—There will be no provision for universal military training in the annual army appropriation bill now being prepared for early presentation in the House, Representative Anthony, acting chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, announced today.

The committee held a meeting today and agreed tentatively on the framework of the measure, which excludes universal training and discards the bill recommended by Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff.

Favors Army of 300,000.
According to Mr. Anthony, there will be no real army reorganization bill presented to the House. An army bill, he said, would be framed by expanding the National Defense Act, and will provide for an army not in excess of 300,000 men. Other members of the committee say that the state of the nation's finances will not permit of an army of such size and intend to fight for a force of 250,000.

Plans announced by Mr. Anthony may be upset on the return of Mr. Kahn, chairman of the committee, who believes in military preparedness and is opposed to the views of the "small army" group.

The decision of the committee to eliminate universal training is based somewhat on the necessity of enforcing strict economy in the framing of appropriation bills. The Republican leaders have determined to reduce estimates to half of the amount asked, if possible. Estimates of the War Department call for approximately $900,000,000. Members of the committee say that these can be scaled down to $550,000,000.

"We shall handle the army reorganization," said Mr. Anthony, "as an immediate proposition and later take up military training as a separate matter."

Splendid Cough Remedy.

"As I feel that every family should know what a splendid medicine Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is, I am only too pleased to relate my experience and only wish that I had known of its merits years ago," writes Mrs. Clay Fry, Ferguson, Station, Mo. "I give it to my children when they show the slightest symptoms of being croupy, and when I have a cough or cold on the lungs a very few doses will relieve me, and by taking it for a few days I soon get rid of the cold."

A TRAPPER'S CONFESSION.

In a recent letter to the Philadelphia Public Ledger, a correspondent has this to say:

In the issue of today's paper I have paid particular attention to Mrs. Fiske's comment on the boycott of furs that were trapped and not raised on the ever-increasing fur farms of America.

I have trapped animals myself, and when I look back at those days I think of the cruelty and horrors of the practice of slaughtering God's creatures for their skins that He who rules over all has given them. Walking on Chestnut street one will notice vain women wearing furs to attract the attention of passers-by. Forgive them, for they know not what they do. It is up to the United States to stop the practice of trapping.—Our Dumb Animals.

AUTOMOBILE PRODUCTION

Notwithstanding the great strides that the industry has been making during the past few months, motor car production this year will not exceed 1,600,000 vehicles because of the small number produced during the months following the signing of the armistice, according to Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She Is a Well, Strong Woman and Praises Cardui For Her Recovery.

Royse City, Tex.—Mrs. Mary Kilman, of this place, says: "After the birth of my little girl...my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me...but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable...I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot... I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family about me... for I knew I could not last many days unless I had a change for the better. That was six years ago and I am still here and am a well, strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life... I have never had any trouble from that day to this."

Do you suffer from headache, backache, pains in sides, or other discomforts, each month? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fagged-out? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

Von Kessel to test his loyalty. Gen. Baron von Oertzen said that to his surprise, Von Kessel was willing to take the bribes offered him. Von Kessel sprang to his feet, denying he was even tempted to take the money.

Marines who escaped execution and relatives of those who met death, appeared on the stand during the day. They swore there was no excitement on March 4, the day of the executions, and one testified Marloh, when he saw a sailor approaching, would shout, "Hey, there; sailor, go to the right," and that those who obeyed were among those shot.

The last witness was Lieut. Schroeter, who tried to establish the fact that the executions were the result of a threatened mutiny, but he admitted the street where the shooting occurred was quiet when he arrived on the scene, and that he had merely been told about the mutiny.

Why is Emma Goldman, any how?

The brighter the lights that are turned on Mexico, the darker looms the shadow of the Greaser.

We suggest that more coal could be saved if the L. & N. would discontinue a portion of the train service on the M. H. & E. branch. The Company might make it a semi-weekly. Then too, there would be less danger of trains running over blind and deaf people.

We greet you Governor Morrow, and hope that your administration of affairs while at the helm in the State House during the coming four years may fully measure up to your pre-election pledges, not so much for your glory but to the good of the "Old State" whom all Kentuckians should delight to honorably and faithfully serve.

We invite the careful attention of our readers to a short line on the front page of this issue. It's on a little, yellow slip in the upper right-hand corner, at the end of said short line may be found the date to which your subscription is paid. Kindly look it up and let's get right to enjoy a merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

In order that our force may take the whole day off Christmas we have decided to put the Republican to press Wednesday night instead of Thursday evening or night. So that will necessitate the closing of our forms promptly at noon Wednesday. Those having ads, or other articles for that issue will please get them in as early as possible, as nothing will be accepted after noon of the 24th for that issue.

The end of the Coal strike that has been reported to be in sight from day to day, during the past few weeks it seems has finally been realized and the order sent down the line that will take the men back to work again. The country is in darkness and shivering for the lack of coal that it should have been getting all of this time, and the agreement that puts the shovel and the pick to bringing forth the precious black diamonds will be welcomed by millions of those whose very lives depended upon coal production.

One good thing growing out of the war is the plans to Americanize the "menu" handed you by the cut-away frocked gentry in the dining rooms of our hotels, by substituting the good old-fashioned "Bill of Fare" therefor, and having it printed in plain American. When a Rube like myself goes to the city, just about nineteen times out of twenty he never knows what he's to get when ordering a meal. One may think he is ordering greens and jole and when it is placed before him it may be A La something else, something you know nothing about and can't eat at all. Come on with straight American, on a plain, readable Bill of Fare.

Tested 259,000 Miles Three-Point Cantilever Springs. Greatest Improvement Since Pneumatic Tires

Overland 4 has been put through the most thorough and severe test possible. 250,000 miles of mountain trails, desert sand, heat, cold, mud and dust, demonstrated the quality of every part of the car long before we began manufacturing.

This remarkable test showed conclusively that Three-Point Cantilever Springs, exclusive with Overland are the greatest improvement in riding comfort since the introduction of pneumatic tires.

They protect the car from road shocks and prolong the life of every part.

They enable the wheels to hold better to the road. They give greater comfort under all road conditions.

They do away almost entirely with side sway and rebound which twist and rack the car.

Diagonal attachment of the Three-Point Springs at both ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives the steadiness and smooth riding of the heavy car of long wheelbase.

Equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting System to Marshall Divan Spring Upholstery.

The GIFTS that WOMEN like the most

WOMEN are really very practical-minded when it comes to gifts. They do not buy for others, but prefer for themselves, those things which have DOUBLE value—value as property and sentimental value.

Although it is, at first thought, a part of vanity and self-adornment, there is a deeper significance to such purchases. The world encourages women—and men, too, for that matter, in the purchase of jewelry. Nowadays rings, as an instance, are made in a bewildering variety of design. There is a ring for every shade of person and personality. The W. W. W. Gem Set Rings, for men and women, are all guaranteed and constitute the very investment we emphasize.

Here, in this fine store, you will see so much that is inspirational. It is a delightful place to visit and to shop.

BRAZIL GROWS MUCH RUBBER

Possesses Vast Forests Of Huge Trees Of Finest Quality.

How Brazil, possessing in her vast forests millions of huge rubber trees of the finest quality growing in rich luxuriance all ready for the knife of the tapper, has been forced by unfavorable conditions to permit the crude rubber supremacy of the world to be swept from her in a decade by the Far East is one of the big events in modern business history.

That Brazil can do big things in the most approved modern fashion needs no proof beyond her coffee industry, her undisputed supremacy there being due to scientific methods of the highest order. In cacao and cattle raising she is also demonstrating her capabilities. But in rubber production she has been hopelessly outdistanced.

About forty years ago some seeds from the rubber trees of Brazil were taken to England and sprouted. Then a few thousand nurslings were transplanted to Ceylon, Java, Burma and Singapore. For years little was heard of the enterprise and then came the demand for rubber tires, and with that demand rubber from plantations in the Far East began to trickle into the markets.

Meanwhile, the Amazon rubber district was going through scenes typical of gold mining rush. Fortunes rocketed to the skies, and as the stream of crude rubber flowed down the river there flowed back to Manaus a golden flood which made the rubber city more luxurious for its size than Paris and made Manaus the best diamond market in the world. Anything that was expensive could be sold, and jewels, fine silks, good wines and foods, costly furniture and gorgeous carriages found their way up the great yellow river, passing for a thousand miles only the walls of jungle that edged the stream. Manaus and Para became beautiful cities with splendid buildings, costly homes and fine streets.

That the position of Brazil, with its great virgin forests of rubber trees, could ever be assailed was a ridiculous thought in those days. Even the manufacturers of Europe and America did not take the plantation efforts seriously. When plantation rubber began to appear in the world's markets it was taken without enthusiasm and at prices well below those paid for the Brazilian product.

But by 1910 a change came. The demand for rubber for automobile tires and for a thousand other uses had become tremendous, and Brazil was unable to meet the demand. That was the plantations' opportunity and they made the best of it. Enormous acreages were planted and hundreds of millions invested.

To-day Brazil is far to the rear. The world's output of crude rubber for the current year will probably reach about 380,000 tons. Of this total Brazil will produce, by the most liberal estimate, not to exceed 35,000 tons, while from the Far East comes 320,000 tons.

The explanation for the change is easily made. In Brazil the rubber trees are found in the dense jungles, and the work is done along lines developed by the Indians and little improved upon. In the Far East trained business men and scientists have brought all their skill into play. In Brazil the worker cuts his way thru the jungle to a tree, and then to another and another until he has laid out a path which he can travel day after day to tap the trees along that route. In the Far East vast areas are laid out like great orchards, the weeds are kept down, every tree is carefully nursed and the stately plantations are among the horticultural wonders of the world.

On the Amazon the rubber collector works on shares with the man who "grub-stakes" him. He is not a trained or careful worker, and his biscuits may include leaves, sticks and dirt, due to carelessness and have been known to include old nails, stones or ax-heads, deliberately introduced by the worker to make his rubber weigh more. Plantation rubber, under the supervision of experts, is placed on the markets in such form that the manufacturer can send it direct to his mills so free is it from impurities.

In Brazil most of the areas richest in rubber trees are swampy, fever-breeding spots. The rainy season cuts the working season down to seven months, but the average working capacity of a collector is only 120 days, chiefly as the result of sickness. Speaking of one of the principal areas, a Brazilian tropical expert declared there were no natives there, "all children born there die."

In the Far East the trees are tapped all the year round and modern medicine is at hand to fight disease.

Before the days of its great prosperity the Amazon rubber district grew much of its own food, but the rubber boom brought about almost a complete cessation in agriculture, and today the prices paid for necessities are fantastic. Prices are from double to five times as high as at Rio Janeiro. The price to be received for the rubber is to a considerable extent a gamble, dependent on the market prices in Europe and America, and the store-keepers, who usually grubstake the collectors cannot be blamed much for getting high prices for their commodities.

With the cost of labor very high, the cost of food many times what it is in other points and production methods crude, Brazil has been unable not only to compete with the plantations but even to develop the industry to its full possibilities. Her jungles are filled with trees that have never been touched, and the increased rate of growth of the output has been negligible lately, although in the past year there have been evidences of efforts toward larger production.

MORGAN HORSE IN ENDURANCE RACE.

In a 300-mile endurance contest with horses of the purest Arabian breeding, "Castor," a Morgan gelding bred by the United States Department of Agriculture at its Middlebury, Vt., Morgan horse farm, was the only horse with a clean speed record at the end of the fourth day of grueling contest. "Castor" won third place for speed at the end of the contest, notwithstanding the fact that he fell in the deep sand on a bad road, injured his nose, and made the last 5 miles in a walk. This achievement is an indication of what has been accomplished by the Department of Agriculture in the rehabilitation of the Morgan breed during the few years since the work was undertaken.

The race was from Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., to Camp Devens, Mass., largely over unimproved roads. The purpose was to stimulate interest in the breeding of Cavalry mounts thru-out the United States. A majority of the horses entered were Arabians. One was a crossbreed that had seen overseas service and was the first horse to pass successfully through quarantine at Newport News. Two were Morgans, bred at the department's farm. The veteran of overseas service, "Bob," owned and ridden by Col. George, led the field at the beginning of the race, but was taken out before the finish. The two Arabians to finish ahead of the Morgan after his accident were Rustem Bey and Ramala.

Maj. C. A. Benton (retired) was one of the judges, acting as the representative of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

PRESIDENT BACKS RED CROSS SEALS

With the cordial endorsement of President Woodrow Wilson the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals opened December 1. Some have already been sold in Washington, where the Prince of Wales himself purchased them before his departure for New York to sail for England. The President, in a letter to Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, wished the movement to sell 650,000,000 of the Red Cross Christmas Seals the "very best success" and the British Prince gave the movement his praise.

The money realized from the sale is to be devoted directly and immediately to the war on tuberculosis in Kentucky. There are hundreds of men and women in the State who have not been able to use as many of the Seals as their interest in the movement caused them to buy. So this year a Health Bond, in denominations of $5 to $100 has been issued for their benefit.

Kentucky has been given 13,000,000 of these Little Red Cross Christmas Seals to sell. The State's quota of the six and a half million dollars to be raised in the nation-wide sale and nation-wide war on the white plague has been fixed at about $130,000, and if it is realized an intensive fight on tuberculosis for 1920 will be made, according to Dr. J. S. Lock, executive secretary of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.

In an address at Louisville, Dr. Lock gave some thought-provoking statistics in regard to the ravages of the white plague in Kentucky, saying that last year more than 4,600 persons had died of this disease, and that nearly thirty thousand others were suffering from it. With proper care and treatment, he said, many of these victims could be cured, and at least, with sensible precautions taught by a visiting nurse, the development of other cases from these could be prevented.

Reports from various counties of the State indicate that the quota will be raised, but that those interested in public health work must become active and present the matter properly to the public, which has always responded liberally in the Red Cross Christmas Seals campaigns in previous years.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

Training Vines.

Grape vines may be cut back as soon as the leaves fall. The method of pruning and training the vines depends somewhat on the age of the plants. Vines that are two or three years old should be provided with some form of permanent support. Stakes or a trellis are usually sufficient and are commonly used.

The two-wire and canopy trellis are the best types and are to be preferred to any of the elaborate frames if the vines are pruned regularly.

In the two wire trellis, the lower wire is placed about three feet from the ground, the upper one about five feet, and the vines are fastened to the wires. Only two canes are allowed to form. Each cane should be cut off at a wire where the branches are allowed to form and spread out in fan-shape along the wire.

The system of training, when the two wires are used, may be varied somewhat by allowing only one cane to grow, cutting it off at the top wire. As the branches grow they should be trained to run along the wires in each direction to a distance of about half way between the plants on each side.

With the canopy trellis, posts are set along the row of grape vines and a cross-arm nailed on top to support the wires. The arms should be two or three feet long and a wire strung on each end and one in the middle. These wires allow the branches to spread out so that ample room is provided to avoid crowding of the fruit. With this arrangement the fruit hangs down freely and can be easily gathered.

New vines may be started by using the hard wood cutting about twelve inches long of the mature grape wood (they should be set in the ground and a good many of them will establish their root system next season.)

The hand pruning shears is the most convenient instrument for trimming grape vines. Many prune their vines as late as February, but you should never wait until March.

All of the dry grapes that are adhered to the vines, and the dead branches and leaves scattered over the ground should be raked up into a pile after the pruning has been completed and burned. This is of great importance, especially when the vines are diseased.

A Swiss milk-maid with a musical singing voice obtains better wages than one who can not sing, as a cow that is soothed with a pleasing melody during milking will, it is said, yield one-fifth more milk.

Wool Used In September.

Manufacturers used about 60,000,000 pounds of wool, grease equivalent in September, 1919, which represents the second largest monthly consumption during 1919, the figures for July 1919, being 63,000,000 pounds, grease equivalent. The September 1919, total exceeds that for same month in 1918 by 2,000,000 pounds, and it is pointed out that in September last year the mills were busy with war contracts.

Totals by condition in pounds for September, 1919, as given by the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, were: Grease, 44,531,330; scoured, 6,692,371; and pulled, 1,762,260.

It is much more fun to watch your money grow than to watch it go. Buy War Savings Stamps.

Johnston County, Okla., is known as the county from which the purest Boon County white corn may be purchased. The fact is entirely due to the co-operation of the club boys for the past seven years. Through their united efforts their county team has taken the State prize on corn for four years.

In buying canned goods do you get full cans? Firms handling good grades of canned vegetables, fruit and meats indorse the activities of the Bureau of Chemistry, of the United States Department of Agriculture, in insisting that every canner give full measure. The public is entitled to full measure and any consumer who finds that the cans he or she has purchased are only partly filled will perform a public service by calling the attention of the grocer to this condition.

Danger in Raw Pork.

At this season there is especial danger of illness following the eating of pork that is raw or only partially cooked. Of course, most Americans do not knowingly consume uncooked pork, although it is eaten not infrequently either as raw ham or in sausages that have been insufficiently cooked. At hog-killing time particularly there are many homemade meat products prepared on the farm, and consequently special care should be taken to make sure that pork, before it is eaten is sufficiently cooked.

The disease known as trichinosis, which may result from eating raw or imperfectly cooked pork, is caused by microscopic worms known as trichinae. These parasites in years past have been found to be present in 1 out of 71 hogs, and if the presence of dead trichinae and trichina-like bodies is included in the count, an average of 1 out of every 39 hogs has been found affected. Unlike many other infectious diseases, the severity of the attack of trichinosis depends upon the number of parasites swallowed. Large quantities of slightly infected pork must be eaten in order to produce bad effects; but on the other hand, severe illness may be caused by eating small amounts of pork that is heavily infected.

Stocks of Old Corn Reduced.

The stocks of old corn on farms November 1 is estimated at 72,263,000 bushels, which is 2.8 per cent of the 1918 crop. The corresponding figure a year ago was 114,678,000 bushels, and the average of the preceding five years was 87,277,000 bushels.

Thrashing and Storing To Save Soy-Bean Seed

Soy-bean seed now is of considerable value, and it is essential that all farmers who have raised it thrash and store it so as to prevent deterioration and loss.

The ordinary grain separator can be adjusted to thrash any beans successfully, but this machine, if equipped to thrash small grains, must be readjusted when soy beans are to be thrashed, as otherwise a large percentage of cracked seed will result. The chief cause of split beans is the high speed of the cylinder, which should be reduced to at least one-half although the speed of the fans and other parts of the separator may be maintained at normal.

Special pea and bean separators of different sizes are now on the market. These types of machines do clean hulling and split practically none of the beans. Undoubtedly such separators are more satisfactory and economical where a considerable acreage of beans is grown. In sections where there is an extensive seed production, investment in such a machine by a community would be profitable.

Soy beans, if thoroughly dry, can easily be thrashed with a flail. If one has only a small acreage—an acre or so—this method is practical and economical. In a few sections, a corn shredder has been used to advantage in the thrashing work and where the beans are properly cured and dried, the seeds shell out readily when run through this machine.

Soy beans which have been stacked out of doors or housed in the snow previous to thrashing should be thrashed when the weather is dry and suitable for work of this character. Thrashing should not be attempted until the beans have passed through a thorough sweat and subsequently cured so that the seed is separated readily from the straw.

The straw obtained from thrashing the soy bean for seed is a valuable feed for all kinds of live stock. In many localities the straw is baled at a time of thrashing and sold.

As soy-bean seeds spoil rather easily if not properly handled, care should be exercised in curing and storing. After the beans are thrashed they should be watched carefully to avoid heating and moulding. When thoroughly dry, there is no such danger. The best plan, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is to spread after thrashing and subsequently shovel them from time to time until they are thoroughly dry. The storeroom should be dry and have a free circulation of air. Soy-bean seed loses its viability rather rapidly and it is not safe to hold seed for planting purposes more than two seasons. The seeds of the soy bean, unlike those of the cowpea, are rarely attacked by weevils or other grain insects.

NEGRO EDUCATION.

According to Bulletin 38 of the Department of the Interior the appropriations for higher schools for white pupils in the South is $6,430,000 while for higher schools for Negro pupils it is $333,000. In some states the appropriation for each Negro child is less than one-tenth the amount for each white child. In Alabama the Negroes constitute 41 per cent of the population and have 10 per cent of the value of the school property and 11 per cent of the appropriations.

Dead Animals Fed To Hogs May Spread Tuberculosis

Warning against the feeding of diseased cattle carcasses to hogs is sounded by the United States Department of Agriculture. A conference of State and Federal officials, held early in October, to deal with matters of tuberculosis eradication, brought to light numerous instances where hogs contracted tuberculosis after feeding on carcasses of tuberculous cattle. In one case nearly an entire drove of hogs showed lesions of tuberculosis, which at first the owner could not account for. Later he admitted to the veterinarian investigating the case that several months before he had fed to the hogs the carcass of a cow that "never did very well."

The Bureau of Animal Industry urges live-stock owners to have a careful autopsy made on animals dying on the farm or killed because of sickness, in order that the definite cause of trouble may be learned. Carcasses that show lesions of infectious diseases should not be fed. Instead, such carcasses should be cared for so that no part can be eaten by hogs. Thorough destruction of the carcass by burning, or by deep burial under a liberal application of quicklime, is the proper procedure in such cases. Attention is called also to the danger of feeding offal from slaughtered animals to swine, as such a practice is another source of infection.

Surgeons agree that in cases of cuts, burns, bruises and wounds the first treatment is most important. When an efficient antiseptic is applied promptly, there is no danger of infection and the wound begins to heal at once. For use on man or beast, Borozone is the ideal antiseptic and healing agent. Buy it now and be ready for an emergency. Price 25c, 50c, $1.00 and $1.50. Sold by Ohio County Drug Company.

SQUAD OF BROTHERS, EIGHT MEN, VOLUNTEER

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 7.—"Family squad, attention!"

This was the command Sergt. Rollin O. Moore, in charge of the local marine recruiting station, was ready to give today when eight lads from Broadhead, Rockcastle county—brothers all—appeared for enlistment.

An emissary had investigated the station a few days ago and after being assured of passing the examination went back home for his seven brothers.

The Sergeant found no physical defects in any one of the eight men, so prepared the papers for them to sign. But at this point of the procedure every one of the boys balked—not one of them was able to write his name. Therefore, they could not be accepted.

Pepto-Mangan Makes Red Cheeks

Builds up Tired Bodies—Helps Change Pale Complexions To Bloom of Health.

The healthy, attractive woman—and man too—with a wholesome complexion is the envy of those who feel that, for them, such attractiveness is impossible.

And yet health and attractiveness are much a matter of good, red blood, and unless a man or woman is afflicted with some deep-seated or serious ailment, vigorous health, and personal charm are within easy reach.

Pepto-Mangan is responsible for the present health and happiness of thousands who formerly were thin, pale, languid, and easily exhausted. Pepto-Mangan helped place these folks in the full-blooded, energetic, vigorous class—and it probably can do the same for you.

Pepto-Mangan contains elements that make rich, healthy blood. And as a result of the increased supply of red blood that Pepto-Mangan creates, the entire system attains the vigor that belongs to every man and woman.

Pepto-Mangan is prepared in two forms, liquid and tablets. They are exactly alike in medicinal value.

Ask your druggist for "Gude's" when ordering Pepto-Mangan. Look for the name "Gude's" on the package. (Advertisement.)

SAN DIEGO NOW HAS SHORT-CUT RAILROAD

Harbor Of The Sun Gets Railway After Fifty Years Wait.

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 6.—The happiest city in the United States today is San Diego, Cal. After half a century of hoping and ten years of watchful waiting, the Harbor of the Sun is the terminus of the shortest direct transcontinental railroad to all points east of the Mississippi from Pacific tidewater.

John D. Spreckles, foremost citizen, is being honored for financing the road and completing it in ten years of trying vicissitudes.

This new railroad is the San Diego and Arizona Railway, extending 150 miles along the border from San Diego to El Centro, where it connects with the Southern Pacific lines and provides a transcontinental short cut. It represents the most expensive railroad building in the United States, with the possible exception of some of the government spruce spurs, having cost $17,000,000 which is upward of $100,000 a mile. Much of the route is mountainous of desert. A score of tunnels and numerous great fills and viaducts were necessary, but it has been done on an easy grade.

Aside from the saving of miles and hours on transcontinental traffic as an important advantage of the San Diego and Arizona route, the scenery of its mountain passage is a travel lure of its own, and by way of justification for its expensive building for business in its own domain, there are fertile valleys along its desert trail, the greatest being the world famed Imperial Valley, an inland empire of productivity.

In this Imperial Valley, 50,000 population produced last year approximately $50,000,000 worth of products, with cotton leading. The San Diego and Arizona loops for practically one-third of its mileage into Mexican Lower California.

Most Scenic Pass.

Carrise George will take position as one of the most scenic mountain passes on American railways. The highest elevation reached is 3,668 feet at Tecate divide. The road, therefore, will complete the way of lowest elevations to the Pacific coast. The lowest elevation is at El Centro, principal city of the inland empire of Imperial Valley, fifty feet below sea level.

Begun in 1909, the San Diego and Arizona Railway is the only major railroad construction carried on during the war. Transportation of explosives and materials both ways across the international border was involved and Mexican labor was imported. Permission was readily obtained from Washington. Extending along the border the railroad would serve well as a military road, of added importance in this regard because of the numerous military and naval establishments at San Diego.

Mr. Fred White Says, "Don't Idle Because You Only See One Rat."

"I did, pretty soon I found my cellar full. They ate my potatoes. After trying rat-snap I got 5 dead rats. The rest later. They pass up the potatoes to eat RAT-SNAP." If there are rats around your place, follow Mr. White's example. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by J. F. Casebier, Acton Bros., Taylor's Drug Store, Williams & Duke.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fleke McFluke.)

Genus, the barber shop porter, says the undertaker knows every "Nigger" who carries insurance and is about the first man on the scene when the deceased starts on his trip to Glory Land.

It's always the case, we might have known better than to go to one of these fazaar dinners where our wife is helping out. She seems to know that I ought to eat nothing but turkey wings, even away from home.

This Railroad Company, operating the lone train a day over this line of cars, not being satisfied with present conditions has sent a man here as assistant to the local Depot, whose last words were "C R O O K." I call enough of anything nearly too much.

We notice where a Ford backfired, and by Hays, Kan., the other day, setting fire to a gasoline tank, the explosion from which killed eight and badly wounded fifty-six others and destroyed $100,000 worth of property. I will not buy my wife a Ford for a Christmas present now. No not this Xmas.

Capt. M. Barnett, who arrived home Saturday, says he did not just expect the boys to meet him with a brass band, as the day was inclement, but little did he think that Mut Hunter, Heg Casebier and the old gang would utterly fail to have something stored away in their private drawers as a stimulating reminder of the good old days, the fragrant, mellow and breezy long-ago.

Set Barnett's business seems to be wrecking. He appears not to be satisfied otherwise engaged. We bought three or three dollars worth of old lumber from him 'tother day for which he dinned us 19 times in three and one-half days. We saw our future happiness would be wrecked, owing him that account and finally, in desperation gave him a check, which will probably do some wrecking for him when he tries to cash it.

Notice in advance fashion sheets that dresses will be 4 inches shorter next season. It almost makes me think to think about it. I think I'll be most afraid to look up, and I dare not look down. If some wise brother or considerate sister will tell us which end of the dress is to be short, we'll know just how to act when we meet the shortened apparel next spring. I know that this seems like borrowing trouble a bit in advance, but I wish to know exactly what I'm going when the season of the short dress falls on us.

EXPRESS THANKS.

We take this means of expressing our heartfelt gratitude and sincere thanks to our friends and relatives for their many kindnesses and help given during the sickness and death of our dear wife and mother. Especially do we wish to thank the singers for the beautiful song service.
